Uponor Domestic Water Piping and Hydronic Piping Specifications Now on ARCAT

Uponor North America (Uponor) now has new, professionally revised, third-party specifications on ARCATTM, the leading online resource for free building product information with no registration required.

Uponor's Domestic Water Piping and Hydronic Piping specifications are available in both MasterFormatTM 1995 and 2014 formats on the ARCAT site. The site also includes a profile for each product family that allows engineers to research Uponor's products on the ARCAT website, then offers them a link to Uponor's Online Product Catalog to access CAD and BIM files.

"ARCAT users are searching for alternative solutions that have specifications written in the three-part specification context they are accustomed to," says Tony Radcliff, vice president of Marketing, Offerings and Engineering at Uponor. "Having our specs on ARCAT allows us to reach an audience that is unaware of Uponor PEX products by offering an easily accessible product business profile. This aligns with our mission to offer our professional partners the right products in the right formats in the right places."

There is also an ARCAT app available for iOS and Android that allows professionals to research Uponor products via mobile devices and easily link to specs as well as the Uponor Online Catalog.
